COURSE DESCRIPTION

This training program consists of four units. The Characteristics of Sewage unit of the program provides the student with a basic understanding of the characteristics and composition of sewage. The Natural Biological Treatment Process unit provides the student with the practical background theory of his occupation. This unit deals with the biological process involved in wastewater treatment such as aerobic and anaerobic decomposition; and aerobic, facultative and anaerobic bacteria. The Waste Treatment Methods unit begins with a generalized picture of a conventional wastewater treatment plan, briefly introducing flow and processes. Each process phase is then examined in more detail. Included are introductory discussion on pretreatment, primary treatment variations, and solids handling and disposal. Specifically, this unit covers processes such as activated sludge and trickling filter processes, and distinguished between the different kinds of waste stabilization ponds.
